

the matter aspect is the only one to make scientific exactness possible

<sup>1</sup>Hylozoics, the mental knowledge system elaborated by 46-self Pythagoras, is the only esoteric system to give an account of the trinity of existence and thus of the planetary hierarchy's basic view of existence. It is to Pythagoras that we owe the reality concepts that provide the necessary foundation for scientific approach. It was, indeed, his intention to make spiritual materialism the unshakable foundation of the science of the future.

2 Of the three aspects of existence, the matter aspect is the only one to make scientific exactness possible. Neither the consciousness aspect nor the motion aspect provides equally logical explanatory grounds. The best proof of this is the yoga philosophy and the old and modern "occult" systems.

3 Most systems of "superphysics" launched in our times are best suited to emotionalists who do not need, do not even want, clarity, since clarity hinders the unhampered expansion of emotional imagination into infinitude, which is what the mystic needs.
