

*This is no isolated law,
but laws are a complex*

³Science has in vain sought to discover the true nature of light, electricity, heat, gravity, magnetism, chemical affinity, and cohesion....

⁴The law of cause and effect is a law that science is in no position to explain. This is no isolated law, but laws are a complex of laws manifesting themselves in forces coming from different directions and acting in different directions. Science will never succeed in ascertaining the existence and effects of those forces....
