

...law contains the attributes of immutability and impersonality...

<sup>1</sup> Law is the condition of freedom. Law is the condition of unity. Law is the unity that man has always sought.

<sup>2</sup> No universe is built without law. Conformity to law characterizes the world of matter as well as the world of consciousness. Conformity to law is a condition of the possibility, existence, evolution, and continuance of life.

<sup>3</sup> The concept of law contains the attributes of immutability and impersonality as the two most valuable ones. The concept of law is a “let there be light” in the chaos of arbitrariness and lawlessness. Conformity to law is the cliff on which we can build our faith and trust in life. Conformity to law makes a rational view of reality possible, makes it possible to realize the meaning of life rationally. Admitted that nature appears cold and hard; it is nevertheless true, just, and incorruptible. It thereby affords us the basis of knowledge, freedom, and power. It grants to human reason the position due to it. All these things are invaluable realities, possibilities, and rights.

[...] Continue reading The Philosopher's Stone
Scroll to: 3.2 LAWS OF LIFE

Translated from Swedish in the hylozoically direct style. Original books of essays are found on the drop-down at top-left of page at

laurency.com

hylozoicExcerpts

3 ESOTERIC LIFE VIEW