

great cosmic barter economy

²² It is the task of all kingdoms to serve each other in the ways they are able to in the great cosmic barter economy. It has been the fatal mistake of mankind that it has considered everything to exist for man's sake, demanded and wilfully taken everything not understanding that all life is a mutual give and take. We are all links in the stupendous chain of evolution, we are all dependent on each other and exist for each other. Mankind's perverse attitude to life has had the result that the energies that would have had a constructive effect instead have had a destructive effect. The history of mankind's suffering is the effect of causes that mankind itself has originated. Our world history needs to be rewritten, to teach us something rational instead of conveying the illusions and fictions of ignorance.

²³ Still science has not recognized the reality of telepathy. Until it does so, additional facts are pearls cast. To the élite, who seek after the truth and can rightly use the knowledge, this is always available....
